Building 2 is offered for sale as one entire building to a business that intends to occupy it. It is not offered as individual suites or partial spaces, and it is not being marketed to passive investors as a leased investment. Stahl Builders Park is a planned development: construction has not commenced on any building, and no completion or delivery date has been finalized.

What this package contains: the verified building facts and the actual Building 2 floor plan from the current drawing set (pages 1–2), an enlarged site plan with Building 2 outlined (page 3), the proposed condominium ownership explanation, and an explicit list of what is and is not defined (page 3). Nothing in this package is a construction commitment.

Building 2 floor plan — sheet A102

One open, clear-span shell on a 20 ft structural bay rhythm. Site plan, ownership, shell status

Site plan — Building 2 outlined in cedar

Building 2 sits on the west side of the park, in Phase 1 with Building 1. Site area per the civil and landscape documents: 156,123 SF (3.58 acres). Parking fields and access drives are shared common elements under the proposed condominium structure; site access and circulation are as shown on the plan, subject to final approvals. A full-size site plan exhibit is available on the project website. Parking stall counts and utility service capacities are not published in this package.

Proposed commercial condominium ownership

Stahl Builders Park is planned around a four-building commercial condominium structure. Each building is intended to be one independently owned condominium unit, with associated interests and rights in shared site improvements — parking, access drives, utility infrastructure, landscaping, drainage, and other common elements. The final legal documents, boundaries, common-element responsibilities, and association arrangements remain subject to attorney, surveyor, title, lender, and other applicable review; no condominium documents have been recorded at this stage.

Proposed shell delivery — what is and is not defined

Defined in the current drawing set: a pre-engineered metal building shell with R-25 insulated liner-system walls, standing-seam metal roof, insulated sectional steel overhead doors, storefront glazing and entries, and plumbing leave-outs for future finish-out — delivered in shell condition, with interior finish-out (tenant improvements) as the buyer's responsibility. Not yet finalized: utility service sizes and capacities (power and plumbing plans exist in the set; figures provided with serious inquiries) and all construction and delivery timelines.
